

Intentional Leadership Workshop

Tuesday, May 16, 12:30pm–4:30pm

There are too few effective leaders!

This workshop builds Intentional Leadership skills to improve managerial performance. We show you how to create the willing followers that are essential to your success as a leader.

Our workshop engages you to take responsibility to be an intentional leader. You will take away from this workshop new insights that permit you to inspire and motivate your workforce:

- Understanding the expectations of today's knowledge workers
- Being a powerful public speaker and an effective advocate
- Equipping yourself with a personal value proposition

Whether presenting to a project team or a room of 300, Franklin Holtforster knows it isn't about him. It's about the audience. It's about getting listeners from here to there - changing their mind and providing them with a new perspective. All while evidencing the key skills of leadership.

During an Intentional Leadership workshop, Franklin speaks on:

- Characteristics of an Effective Leader
- Inspiring and Motivating
- The Power of Public Speaking
- Your Personal Value Proposition
- Taking the Fear out of Meeting and Greeting
- Intentional Project Leadership

Featuring Keynote Speaker: Franklin A. Holtforster, P.Eng., PMP
